STATUS OF OLD DIVORCE CASES.

Legality of Proceedings to Be Determined.

UP TO DISTRICT SUPREME COURT.

Justice Hagner Declines to Issue Or. der in the Nash Case Pending the Decision of Higher Tribunnl-The Subject of Discussion.

There are other questions than the legality of the juries recently summoned for service in the different branches of the court which require the thoughtful consideration of the members of the local bench and bar.

Before the status of the juries has been decided, the Supreme Court of the District is called upon to determine whether or not proceedings for divorce filed before the code went into effect on January 1 will be proceeded with or dismissed from the dockets. In addition to this, District Attorney Gould is asked to give his opinion on the gambling laws in operation in the District.

Status of Divorce Proceedings.

The status of the proceedings for divorce which were filed prior to January 1 last, and which are still pending in the local courts, came up for decision yesterday before Justice Hagner, presiding in Equity Court No. 1.

The point was raised in connection with the suit of Mrs. Emily J. Nash against William J. Nash. Attorney Mason N. Richardson, who represents Mrs. Nash, asked the court to grant him an order of publication, so that he might get service on the defendant in that way.

Declines to Issue Order.

Justice Hagner declined to issue the order on the ground that the Supreme Court of the District has not yet decided exactly what is the status of proceedings for divorce which were filed before January 1, 1902. The matter, he stated, however, will be determined in a few days. Mrs. Nash filed suit for divorce against her husband on November 14 last, but up to this time the marshal has not been able to serve a copy of her complaint upon the defendant.

Will Be Taken as a Precedent.

Whatever is the decision of the court in the Nash case will be taken as a precedent in all divorce proceedings pending which originated prior to the time the code went into effect.

From what was learned at the City Hall yesterday it is not probable that the Court of Appeals will hand down a decision relative to the legality of the juries now serving in the Supreme Court of the District until near the end of the month. When the members of the court agreed to consider the matter at an early date it was with the understanding that it stances, therefore, it is not expected that a decision will be reached as early as was Legality of the Juries.

The question of the legality of the juries is still the subject of discussion among the members of the bar. Several of the most prominent members, among whom are some who took part in framing the code, when asked about the matter would not say that the juries are qualified to

Shortly after the visit of the attorney to the police it was learned that Thomp-son had left a mysterious box in the care of a barkeeper at one of the prominent Avenue saloons. The box was insignificantinappearance, but the curiosity of the man to whom it had been entrusted induced him to examine the package. Lying snugly in the corner of the box, covered by a package of envelopes, he saw a magnificent array of jewels. There were several diamend brooches, a pearl brooch, a handsome stud and several rings. The saloonkeeper showed the ar-ticles to a number of persons, and then put the box away in an iron safe.

Sent a Note.

Immediately following the arrest of Thompson in Galt's store he sent a written order to the barkeeper and the precious box was delivered to the attorney, it is alleged. Afterward, it is said

Leding and the diamond stud stolen from Galt & Bro. are similar to those described by persons who saw the valu-able cluster in the corner of the paper box. The stud taken from Galt is valued at $250. That was missed after Thomp-son's alleged visit to the store in the morning and when he returned in the afternoon it is claimed that he was caught in the act of appropriating a brooch and was promptly placed under arrest by Policeman Boyce. Mr. Robert Leding has identified Thompson as a man who called at his store about the time of the Galt robbery. It was several weeks later, when he was taking stock, that Mr. Leding discov-ered that several articles of a total value of $50 were missing. There was a pearl brooch valued at $40, and two small dia-mond rings worth $25 and $15, respectively.

Thompson was taken to the Police Court yesterday morning but his case was continued until today. Ball was dealed and he was committed to juli.
